JENNIFER WESTERBECK
Pittsburg, PA
US Bancorp Community Development Corporation

Jennifer Westerbeck has worked in Historic & New Markets Tax Credit ("NMTC") Investments at US Bancorp Community Development Corporation (CDC) for 16 years. The CDC's Historic & NMTC Investment team structures and originates equity investments in tax credit related projects and real estate developments throughout the country. Since the inception of the NMTC program, USBCDC has been involved in over $27.5 billion of Qualified Equity Investments ("QEIs") with 255 Allocatees in more than 1,804 transactions. Jennifer was hired in August 2006 to open the Washington, DC, office and help expand activities in the east coast and Gulf Opportunity Zone.

She has since relocated to Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. Before coming to the CDC, Jennifer was the Director of New Markets Strategies at the National Trust Community Investment Corporation, a CDE and subsidiary of the National Trust for Historic Preservation. Jennifer came to the Trust after eight years with the CDFI Fund of the Department of the Treasury. In her last three years at the Fund, she worked almost exclusively with the NMTC Program to develop the policies and procedures, review NMTC allocation and CDE certification applications and provide training and technical assistance to a variety of audiences. She has a MBA from George Washington University and a B.A. in International Relations and Business Administration from William Jewell College.
